 Leonardo (24) works as a host in club 'Zeus' in Shanghai. Host boys, like host girls, fulfil the need of attention, friendship and love. But whereas with host girls it is mostly about sex, host boys work according to a totally different system. With them, the goal is to steal the hearts of their clients. Leonardo's day starts when night falls and ends at sunrise. Leonardo's aim is to become a top-selling host. Leonardo earns pretty well with selling attention, emotion and friendship. And he spends many hours a day to maintain the 'relationships' with all the woman. One day Sly (27) arrives. Sly is a handsome guy and once one of the best selling hosts of Club Zeus. One year ago however, he left without further notice. Now Sly returned to convince Leonardo to quit hosting. But Coco, the owner of Club Zeus, doesn't let her young talent leave that easily. Sly decides to work one last time as a host, in order to earn enough to buy Leonardo free. But the moment Sly turns on his cell phones, the text messages from all the desperate woman come flooding in. Who also received word that Sly returned to Shanghai is Jade (25) a beautiful young woman who works as a hostess in another club somewhere in town. Once Sly and Jade meet, it becomes obvious why he left a year ago. Slowly, the hosts find themselves caught in a web or their own stories, lies and fake emotions, and with that they loose themselves.

SING YOUR SONG

Documentary (104 Min.)

Language: English

Director: Susanne Rostock

Writer: Susanne Rostock

Producer: Gina Belafonte, Jim Brown, Michael Kohl, William Eigen, Julius R. Nasso

Key Cast: Harry Belafonte Sidney Pottier Huddie W. Ledbetter (Ledbelly)

Delivery Status: Screening

Year of Production: 2011

Country of Origin: USA

Wonderfully archived, and told with a remarkable sense of intimacy, visual style, and musical panache, Susanne Rostock's inspiring biographical documentary, SING YOUR SONG, surveys the life and times of singer/actor/activist Harry Belafonte. From his rise to fame as a singer, inspired by Paul Robeson, and his experiences touring a segregated country, to his provocative crossover into Hollywood, Belafonte's groundbreaking career personifies the American civil rights movement and impacted many other social-justice movements. Rostock reveals Belafonte as a tenacious hands-on activist, who worked intimately with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., mobilized celebrities for social justice, participated in the struggle against apartheid in South Africa, and took action to counter gang violence, prisons, and the incarceration of youth. Because of his beliefs, Belafonte drew unwarranted invasions by the FBI into both his personal life and career, which led to years of struggle. But an indomitable sense of optimism motivates his path even today as he continues to ask, at 84, "What do we do now?" His example may very well inspire you to action.

The first American film produced in the country of Armenia, Braden King's HERE is a landscape-obsessed road movie that chronicles a brief but intense romantic relationship between an American satellite-mapping engineer (Ben Foster) and an expatriate Armenian photographer (Lubna Azabal), who impulsively decide to travel together into uncharted territory. Will's Shepard's solitary work - land-surveying satellite images to check for accuracy and resolve anomalies - is called "ground-truthing". He's been doing it on his own, for years, all over the world. Gadarine Nazarian is a tough and intriguing art photographer on her first trip home in ages, passionately trying to figure out what kind of relationship - if any - she still has with her home country and culture. There is an almost instant, unconscious bond between these two lone travelers; they impulsively decide to continue together. The two become deeply connected as their sense of themselves - and their worlds - expands. As their trip comes to an end, each must deal with the conclusions to which their journey has led them - and each must decide where to go from HERE.

 Everything is complicated in Yoni's life: He's almost 13, really smart, but physically underdeveloped and struggles daily to quickly grow into the physique of a man before his up-coming Bar Mitzvah. He sells homework in order to secretly buy a body-building wonder powder, which so far does nothing, he stretches every night with heavy weights tied to his legs and screams with full force in the wind to deepen his girlish, unstable voice, which earned him his nickname - Helium. His classmates, a year older and two heads taller, bully him every chance they get and his parents barely say a word to each other or, if at all, communicate through him. As if all this weren't enough - only a week before the ceremony - his autistic brother, Tomer, 17, locked away for years in an institution which has been shut down, returns home. This shakes up not only Yoni's life, but the unstable foundation of the entire family. Being the only real adult in his family, Yoni ends up dealing on his own with a brother he hasn't seen in ten years and who becomes obsessed with "Noah's Tale". Perceiving the world a little differently, Tomer internalizes every word of the Torah except Yoni will sing during the ceremony. He starts collecting and pairing animals, places them in an old boat in the shed and invents "The Flood"-game. It is a pretty rough growing up and growing together for the entire family as painful truths, mistakes of the past and sorrows of the present are confronted. Although his voice hasn't changed, his height and his muscle mass have stayed the same Yoni arrives at his Bar Mitzvah a grown boy. Together with his father he even manages to create a magical, almost real flood for his brother. A flood no one will forget.

An adaptation of Nigel Slater's best selling memoir, TOAST is the ultimate nostalgia trip through everything edible in 1960's Britain. Nigel's Mother was always a poor cook but her chronic asthma and addiction to all things canned isn't helping. Nigel on the other hand laps up cookbooks like they are porn, spending all his time gazing longingly at the delights on offer in Percy Salt's grocers. As his mother's illness worsens so do Nigel's relations with his father. The bolognese he cooks is far too exotic; the uncooked Fray Bentos pie MUST be finished; and his father's rage as Nigel insists on picking every last bit of jelly off the tinned ham at the annual picnic hits an all time high. Just before Xmas, Nigel's mother dies, leaving Nigel and his father heartbroken. His Father begins to spend his evenings at the Masonic lodge until a new cleaner, Mrs Potter, arrives on the scene. Mrs. Potter's figure, charms and lemon meringue pies quickly bewitch Nigel's father and much to Nigel's horror, the three soon embark on a move to the country. The one silver lining in the cloud of a new school being Domestic Science class, through which Nigel can finally shine and cooking soon becomes the key weapon in the battle for Dad's affections. Ironically, the main casualty of these culinary skirmishes is Nigel's father, as his waistline grows and grows as Mrs Potter's cooking turns obsessive. When Nigel lands a job in the kitchen of his local pub his eyes are opened to a world of opportunity, both culinary and sexually. He soon becomes smitten with both the new owner's cooking and with her son. When his father dies, Nigel's mind is set as he packs a bag for London and arrives at the door of The Savoy Hotel.

Spurred on by playful jibes that he's little more than a city suit living the capitalist's dream, this frustrated amateur opera singer decides to throw an opera in his lavish country retreat. In the search of a solution for his problem, he has decisive encounters with the most important people of the wine world, like Michel Rolland, who thinks that he has to "wash" his palate with the best wines of the region. Charlie starts a journey from huge wineries through small vineyards and wine harvest's processions getting closer with the people of the villages who work the vine. Realizing the failure of the advice, his journey becomes a return, getting away from that glamorous world where he thinks he belongs. It turns into a new journey towards his essence, his loved ones, his pains and real ghosts. Delivery Status: Completed
Year of Production: 2011
Country of Origin: Colombia
In this eerie and fantastically shot tragicomic satire, an ordinary farmer's morning routine is interrupted when he makes a grim discovery in the middle of his cornfield—a huge pile of dead bodies. Aghast, he reports the mysterious massacre on what happens to be Election Day. When the small-town mayor and police lieutenant take notice, fearful of unleashing a public scandal, they stall and intimidate the farmer and his family. Meanwhile, the sun beats down, and the eerie corpses remain, refusing to be ignored. All Your Dead Ones unspools a disquieting allegory, a silent indictment of Colombia's ongoing civil war. The imagery and sound, crafted with unsettling intensity, illustrate a frightening crisis of social conscience. Tinged with mordant surrealism, director Carlos Moreno's return to Sundance (Perro Come Perro screened at the 2008 Sundance Film Festival) demonstrates a rare ability to transcend genre and a remarkable storytelling vigor, anchored within a haunting and arresting visual motif.

CORNELIS is a biographical music film chronicling the life of Cornelis Vreeswijk – a life unlike any other. A hard life which started anew as many times as it collapsed. A life lived in euphoria and in darkness. It is the film about one man's constant search, restless need to express himself, and enigmatic contradictions. The shy, bourgeois man who becomes a womanizer, a national ruffian, banned from the radio. The social worker with writer's dreams who becomes a musician. The people's Poet Laureate who never got his Swedish citizenship. The penniless tax evader. Crucified in the press for his reluctance to conform. Loved on stage for just that. Everybody's friend, but nobody's confidante.

Based on the critically acclaimed bestseller by Allison Pearson, I Don't Know How She Does It follows a Boston-based working mother trying desperately to juggle marriage, children, and a high-stress job. Kate Reddy (Sarah Jessica Parker) devotes her days to her job with a Boston-based financial management firm. At night she goes home to her adoring, recently-downsized architect husband Richard (Kinnear) and their two young children. It's a non-stop balancing act, the same one that Kate's acerbic best friend and fellow working mother Allison (Christina Hendricks) performs on a daily basis, and that Kate's super-brainy, child-phobic young junior associate Momo (Olivia Munn) fully intends to avoid. When Kate gets handed a major new account that will require frequent trips to New York, Richard also wins the new job he's been hoping for-and both will be spreading themselves even thinner. Complicating matters is Kate's charming new business associate Jack Abelhammer (Pierce Brosnan), who begins to prove an unexpected source of temptation.

Trying to remain resolutely undiscouraged, Pat moves back in with his parents and devotes himself entirely

Feeling abandoned by her husband, Arthur Miller, and smitten with the young Clark, Monroe's true London adventure takes place behind Showgirl's cameras and out of view of the tyrannical Olivier (Oscar® nominee Kenneth Branagh) and the film's other female star, Sybil Thorndike (Oscar® winner, Judi Dench). But, as Colin becomes indispensable to, and besotted by, the volatile Marilyn, and a burgeoning relationship begins between the two, he also becomes Olivier's only hope for getting the film finished by keeping the unpredictable actress in line. They're a trio. Franck and Helene, married with two children (5 and 7) and Max - alone, though not by choice. Three inseparable childhood friends.

Franck's been a welder since he was 16.

Twenty years later, like thousands of other workers, like their families, like Helene, he lives in fear of restructuring at the factory. As for Max, he couldn't give a damn about that or anything else.

When he was made redundant two years ago, he lost everything - his wife, his son, his house and his so-called friends, the other workers... Only Franck and Hélène stuck by him, unswervingly loyal. Without them, he'd have nothing.

One Friday at the factory, Franck overhears a conversation that leaves him devastated... all the machines are to be dismantled on the quiet and removed by truck before the end of the weekend. Full of rage, Franck broods furiously, torn between robbing the factory safe and warning his co-workers about what is being planned. He makes his decision - before anything else, he'll talk to Max...

James is sent to a reformatory. An outcast, he is bullied mercilessly. Following a cruel attack by the other boys, a mysterious illness sweeps through the reformatory. footage of a murder on her phone - a Caucasian man killing a young Latino. August knows these men. The dead guy's Jesus Guzman, a dealer. The killer is Nicholas Feinman, son of New York's most powerful investment banker. Before August can question Signe, there's a knock on the door - Angel, Jesus' brother and the most feared drug enforcer on the Lower East Side. Jesus is missing - maybe August knows where he is? August hides the girl, gets Angel out of his apartment, and searches desperately for a way out of this nightmare. Signe explains they both need money - for her to get out of the country and for him to get out of debt. They have to blackmail Nicholas. Yet neither they, nor Nicholas, anticipates that Angel Guzman will stop at nothing to find out what has happened to his brother. Soon, all are caught in a deadly game of blackmail, double crosses and escalating violence. When he learns that Signe may have been playing him all along, August has to choose - get the money, get the truth, or get out alive.

THE GIRL IS IN TROUBLE - a thriller that fuses a 21st Century sensibility to the kinetic energy of the French New Wave and the grittiness of classic Americana noir.
